INTRODUCTION

I'm excited to present the 2014 ETO Doors Product Catalog. Inside you'll see photos of our employees as they work in our Downtown LA facility, as well as customer photos that accompany the stock product images. The result is a visual experience that showcases our doors from manufacturing through hanging.

With respect to product offerings, we've included perennial favorites like the Rustic, Moderno, and hand-carved Brazilian Mahogany doors; this edition also debuts our Contemporary line, as well as the new line of aluminum (p.100), steel (p.96), and garage doors (p.97). Visit us at www.etodoors.com for a complete selection of doors, prices, and other options that may not be featured in this Catalog.

As a green company, we're printing less and asking that our customers view this catalog online, or save it as a .pdf instead of printing. If you want to see new products as soon as they are released, we consistently update our door selection online via our website and social media. Please be sure to follow us on Twitter (@etodoors), Tumblr (<http://etodoors.tumblr.com>), and of course, on Facebook (www.facebook.com/etodoors).

I truly appreciate your business and look forward to serving you this year. Enjoy browsing.

CUSTOM DOORS

Design Chart

Custom doors don't have to be complicated. Design your Door in 4 Quick Steps:

Step 1: Define Your Door Size. Decide what size door you will require by measuring the current opening or prospective opening for new construction or redesign. Double-check your measurements or have a carpenter or contractor evaluate the space to confirm the sizing.

Step 2: Select Style of Your Door. Modern, Classic, or Transitional? Whatever your preference, the Custom Department can accommodate your design aesthetic. If you're stuck, look at home magazines or the ETO Doors website for more ideas.

Step 3: Choose Compliments and Accessories. Sidelites and transoms not only increase the natural light for your entryway, but also add instant intrigue with the various glass insert options. Hardware, such as handles and locksets, come in nearly any finish you can imagine.

Step 4: Give Us Your Wish List. Email the design specifications to your ETO Sales Team member. They will review and respond with pricing or additional questions.

NOTE: We always recommend consulting with a carpenter or construction professional to ensure your custom door will work with your opening and meets any code requirements for your area.
